

Introduction:

Hello everybody!! We are the "Politicizing Pathways" group. So our group came together because we wanted to reflect on the relational aspects of power and pathways. We have a fun (hopefully) game planned for all of us.

Our game is set in a rural context in the Global South. It is a largely agrarian, patriarchal, heterogenous society. We would like to invite 12 people to step forward and participate in our game.

- Each of you will be given a character sketch. You must embody this character and make decisions as you feel appropriate for this person.
- We will read out certain questions and you must decide how you will react based on your character sketch. If your response to the question is yes, take a step forward. If not, please remain in your position.
- Do not reveal your character until the end of the game.
- You might be physically moved forward or backward in certain cases. So, if you are uncomfortable, please let us know.

So, let's begin and we'll explore as we go forward.
